

Environmental Health Specialist Recruitment

Cabarrus Health Alliance (CHA) is seeking an energetic and motivated Environmental Health Specialist to join our team of excellent staff who work to improve and maintain the health of our community. CHA is the provider of public health services for Cabarrus County, North Carolina. CHA's primary office is located in Kannapolis adjacent to the North Carolina Research Campus. CHA is proud to be accredited by the state of North Carolina and nationally through the Public Health Accreditation Board (PHAB). These designations are a direct reflection of high quality performance expected from all staff.

This specific role performs education, surveillance, consultation, and enforcement of state environmental health laws and regulations which are mandated for the county to perform. Additionally, this role is critical to protect public health and safety through preventative measures designed to identify and control the spread of diseases. Specifically, staff evaluate environmental health conditions through the observation, inspection, and grading of facilities such as (but not limited to) restaurants, meat markets, food and drink stands, child care centers, institutions, school cafeterias, tattoo artists, public swimming pools, residential care/group homes, and push carts/mobile food units, and conduct environmental lead investigations.

Applicants should have considerable knowledge of environmental laws, rules, and procedures, as well as an understanding of the concepts of public health law. Additionally, applicants should have knowledge in microbiology, biology, chemistry, geology and other physical and earth sciences.

Successful candidates will have graduated from a four-year college or university with 30 semester hours of course work in the physical or biological sciences or four-year or Master's Degree in Environmental Health from a program which is accredited by the National Accreditation Council for Environmental Health Curricula of the National Environmental Health Association, and one year experience in Environmental Health.

CHA offers a competitive salary, generous health insurance plan, paid vacation time and sick time, tuition reimbursement, leadership development program, and paid holidays. The agency provides a vehicle for day-to-day business travel and technology to ensure you are working efficiently.

Top candidates will be invited to meet CHA staff and participate in the interview process. We look forward to receiving your application and resume!
